

UDC 343.9:343.226

OLEKSANDRA VIACHESLAVIVNA YERIOMINA
Kharkiv National University of Internal Affairs

ANY VIOLENCE IS A POISON TO SOCIETY

Violence in society is an integral part of everyday life. No one ever wondered what were the signs of social violence? Why is it so commonplace for us that we do not pay attention to such a global problem? Anyone should understand that violence cannot change the world, and if it changes, it is only temporary. Do you know where social violence originates? His television is being broadcast on a daily basis. Violence is politics, it's history, it's power, it's economy, it's institutional methods of organizing society. That is why we unconsciously succumb to him, thereby, using violence against one another.

We are watching the authorities try to fight violence. Has anyone given any importance to what methods she is trying to combat violence and what will lead to it in the future? The authorities are trying to reduce violence by using the same violence! Is this the way to solve this problem? The great civil rights activist Martin Luther King said: "... Violence multiplies violence ...". Based on this statement, some will begin to condemn the authorities for this method of solving the problem. But it is not necessary to take everything for granted, any method has both positive and negative impact on society. I think that there are conditions in which violence is both necessary and useful, and there are conditions in which violence can't produce results. That's why, we can safely say that the method of violence is one of the alternative and effective ways to solve the problem of violence in society. The question is only one. what conditions to apply this method? I suppose that there are conditions in which violence is both necessary and useful, and there are conditions in which violence can't produce results.

When asked a question, "What is your ideal society?" many people answered, "... there is no place for violence in our ideal." Many questions arose from this experiment. If we promote the absence of violence in an ideal society, then why do not we notice the existence of violence in a real society.

Why do we just close our eyes and allow violence to enter our daily lives? Think about it. This is not just a problem, it is a global problem that everyone has to take part in. I think each of you will make the right conclusions and we, starting with ourselves, will solve this problem.

Language adviser A. V. Bilousov